Wishings and gifting the write stuff, here's perfection at the onset of winter.

It's all about sustainable products that don't add to the carbon dustbin. No wonder the launch of Pureology, which as the name suggests is 100 per cent vegan is being hailed as the ultimate in colour care. Pureology that has won more awards than Dustin Hoffman has Oscars—contains organic botanicals and its ZeroSulphate formula means it gently cleanses the hair without stripping colour. It also offers a long lasting colour satisfaction guarantee or your money back – a first in the professional industry. This, with the fact it's fully recyclable, makes it a pure delight.

The three Pureology haircare systems have recently introduced 13 new products to market: They have the Hydrate System, for dry colour-treated hair; PureVolume System, for fine colour-treated hair and Essential Repair System, for distressed colour-treated hair.

Brighten up your nest

As the winter frost envelops the city, it's time to liven up your nest and make it a cozy and snug place to snuggle into. You could start with your bedroom and then move to the living room, making it a more cheerful place to be in. Check out the fabulous bedding collections, offering a wide selection of stunning prints, colours and cottons to suit any home, at Wallace Cotton, Teed Street, New Market. Offering seasonal ranges of bedding collections, home furnishing collections, lounge and bed wear, they focus on sourcing the finest quality fabrics from around the world. Each season they introduce a range of beautiful bedlinen, home furnishings and garments that reflect the latest in interior and fashion trends. Owners Paula and Bill Wallace have opened retail stores in Enterprise Street, Birkenhead and most recently Teed Street in Newmarket.

The write stuff

With technology taking over our lives and pushing our buttons, the art of putting pen on paper has almost been elevated to pure luxury. Enabling us to rediscover the lost art by bringing exquisite fine stationery to New Zealand, is Rawlence and Horton. Uniquely manufactured in New Zealand, Rawlence and Horton are committed to ensuring their product mix has a minimal impact on the environment. Their understated yet modern style of social and business stationery is designed with both men and women in mind. The new 'Diamond Monogram' range makes for the ultimate, high quality gift option with a personal touch. Each set within the collection includes 10 exquisite monogrammed cards and envelopes, presented in a custom made box. Made from 100% recycled, luxuriously thick card paper, the range is tested for fountain pen suitability to ensure the ink does not bleed.
